Emma Molloy Replies to George Graham.

She Gives an Itemized Denial to the Shameful Charges the Murderer Made,

And Closes With an Appeal, Rather Eloquent, for Her Own Vindication.

MRS. EMMA MOLLOY.

She Replies to the Charges of George Graham.

SPRINGFIELD, Mo., May 11.—Interest in the Graham-Molloy case, which was somewhat dampened by the lynching of Graham, is reawakened by a statement of Mrs. Emma Molloy, which has been given out by her attorneys. The statement is confined almost entirely to a refutation of the scandalous charges made against the two women by Graham, soon after his arrest, in his so-called confession.

MRS. MOLLOY'S STATEMENT.

SPRINGFIELD, Mo., May 11.—Mrs. Emma Molloy has for some time been engaged in collecting and preparing proofs refuting the statements made by George E. Graham, who was recently lynched at this place. The work was completed to-day, and is now given to the press. The statement is as follows:

For several weeks my friends all over the United States have been imploring me for the refutation of the scandalous charges made by George E. Graham, in his "statement," which was launched upon the world while we were in the midst of a preliminary examination, under charge of a crime which was committed when I was three hundred miles away, and of which I had not the slightest knowledge until I read it in the newspapers. Did I believe that Cora Lee Graham was capable of participation in so horrible an affair, or that she could ever have connived at, or consented to, or ever known of, or concealed so unnatural a crime, I should never set pen to paper in her defense in any way; but I do believe in her innocence, not only of the crime charged by the courts, but the knowledge that she was an unlawful wife, of the slanderous assertions of Graham, who in one breath declares her to be the one woman of all the world to him, and in the next charges her with criminality such as could only be practiced by the vilest woman.

I have always believed and still believe her to be one of the most conscientious of women, and had she been as his statement represents—so loose in all her ideas of morality and virtue—there had been no need for George Graham to have risked imprisonment to make her his wife. I am aware that it is impossible in a brief newspaper article to present anything like a lucid history of the connection of Graham with my family. This would require the relation of details and the publishing of correspondence that would fill a volume. I expect, if spared, soon to issue a history of my prison and reform work, which will read like a romance, and will present quite another side of the case than has been given to the public. The world may then, perhaps, not wonder so much that we were deceived, for the public has been made aware that this man had no ordinary brain.

Then Mrs. Molloy goes into an itemized contradiction of all the charges and accusations made by George Graham, backing her assertions by letters and affidavits and tracing her movements in the west. With this she closes her three column defense as follows:

So it will be seen how very readily these charges are disproved. Yet I do not write this with the expectation of total recovery from this murderous assault. Any woman may be slandered in this country in the same way. Character, like life, seems in these days to have no value, if a few dollars are to be made by its destruction. When a woman's reputation is thrust under the Juggernaut of the American press by so vile a pen as was wielded in this case, it is impossible to wholly undo its work. Over the electric wires it has crept into homes where I was beloved as a sister, from the Atlantic to the Pacific. I received a letter to-day from Halifax, Nova Scotia, saying, "I have loved and esteemed you for your great work's sake, and though I know nothing of the circumstances, and am 2,600 miles distant, I feel sure the charges are untrue, and you will come out of the fire all right." Yet there are thousands who have read the charges, who will never read the refutation. My case has been prejudiced before a witness on my side has been heard, or a shred of rebutting evidence given. I can only hope this statement may reassure my friends who have stood by me in the storm, and make the world a little more tender to the orphan children whose prospects have been so clouded in this great calamity. The thoughtless men who have hurled to the world this vile calumny owe it to these children, as well as to myself, that they give this refutation as wide publicity as they have the slander. As I think of their blasted lives, and look into their sorrowful faces, and into the grave of my usefulness, and witness the humiliation of my parents, and brothers and sisters, whose pride has been the unspotted record of our family, I can but ask what has been gained by the publication of this filth to the world? It has been like opening a charnel house whose very breath has carried moral disease and death into thousands of homes.

DeQuincy, in one of his essays, treats of "murder as a fine art." Has it not become so in America, when the press lends its aid to a criminal guilty of the blackest crimes to continue his murderous work and destroy the woman whose crime was her credulity in believing that "salvation could reach the uttermost?" George Graham gave his wife the blessed luxury of an immediate death. To the victims of his treachery and deceit he has awarded a torture as exquisite in its anguish as it is slow in its consummation. The memory of that horrible murder will forever be a canker, blighting all joy, and his name, so unjustly linked with mine in that awful crime, it seems to me was enough, without this added slander. It has been my earnest desire ever since I can remember to do good in this world, and to live so that those who came in contact with me should be happier and better for that contact. Only God can know the soul agony I have endured as I have read daily the false caricatures of that life—caricatures that contained not a shadow of truth—and I think of the little children whom I have loved, all over this land, who have thus been made to regard me as a monstrosity of vice and crime, of the thousands of friends who have been made cold and distrustful, and

"Broken hearted, I stand 'mid the conquered Who fell in the battle of life. Among the wounded and beaten, Who died overwhelmed in the strife. While the voice of the world shouts its chorus—

Its pen for those who have won, While the trumpet is sounding triumphant, And high to the breeze and the sun Glad banners are waving, Hands clapping and hurrying feet Thronging after the laurel-crowned victim, I stand on the field of defeat. With the threat of my life all around me, Unpitied, unheeded, alone, With death swooping down on my failure, And all but my faith overthrown."

Even my last cry will be sneered at, I am aware, but this is not written for those who have gloried in my calamity or wished my destruction; it is for my friends all over this land who have believed in my honesty of purpose. To them I wish to say, though I have made grievous mistakes, I have had most honest intentions, and surely no one has suffered more in this cyclone than I.

THE STRIKE.

CHICAGO.

THE RIOTERS ARE POISONED.

CHICAGO, May 11.—It has been ascertained that of the Polish and Bohemian rioters who drank liquors when they sacked the drug store at Centre avenue and Eighteenth street, last Wednesday, eight have died and at least four more are known to be beyond recovery. Wine of Colchicum, which greatly resembles Sherry wine, is supposed to be the agent of destruction.

There was no attempt to resume operations in the west side lumber district this morning. The lumbermen claim a great majority of the men are overawed by the Bohemian socialists who infest the region.

THE POLICE FUND.

The total amount of contributions to the policemen's fund will almost reach $75,000.

ST. LOUIS.

ST. LOUIS, May 11.—The Master Builders' association, last night, agreed to at once cease work upon any building upon which they may be employed when another member of their association shall be forced to cease work upon his contract by any trade union, and that such cessation continue until their brother members shall again be able to resume his work.

PITTSBURG.

PITTSBURG, May 11.—The striking ice wagon drivers and helpers are forcing non-union men to quit work. The police have been detailed to arrest disorderly strikers.

NEW YORK.

NEW YORK, May 11.—There are 1,500 workmen idle, representing hat makers, harness makers, and leather jobbers. The first named were locked out, while the other two are on a strike.

MR. PAYNE.

Will Have to Stir Himself. WASHINGTON, D. C., May 11.—In the senate Mr. Hoar presented the memorial of the republican central committee of Ohio, charging that the election of Hon. Henry B. Payne was secured by bribery, fraud and corruption, and requesting that the senate investigate the matter. Referred to the committee on privileges and elections.

Poisoned by Rhubarb.

ALLIANCE, O., May 11.—Rev. W. M. Kinsley, wife two children and his mother, partook of a quantity of boiled rhubarb leaves last Sunday. The entire family became sick with strong symptoms of poisoning. His mother died yesterday. The others are still alive and very low, but will probably recover.

President Smith.

WALL STREET, N. Y., May 11.—James D. Smith was elected president of the stock exchange yesterday.

WASHINGTON.

The Work in Congress Important To-day.

WASHINGTON, May 11.—The senate committee on pensions to-day adopted a resolution calling on the commissioner of pensions for an estimate of the outlay required under the Ingalls bill for the removal of the limitation to the arrears of pension act.

The senate committee on military and militia ordered to-day a favorable report on the Logan bill for the equalization of bounties.

The inter-state commerce was taken up.

HOUSE.

The ways and means committee to-day received the report of the sub-committee adverse to the Mexican reciprocity treaty. After adopting one or two amendments the committee rose and the bill passed.

Mr. Lowry, from the committee on elections, submitted the unanimous report of the committee on the California contested election cases. The report, which confirms the right of all sitting members, was agreed to.

The house went into committee of the whole on the army appropriation bill.

Secretary Whitney is credited with having purchased ex-Secretary Chandler's interest in the National Republican of this city, for $10,000 cash, and thirty or forty thousand dollars in interest-bearing notes. The transfer is said to have occurred a month ago, and to this is ascribed the appearance in a supposed republican newspaper of articles friendly in tone to Senator Payne, of Ohio, in connection with the charges of bribery in securing his seat.

THE WORK IN CONGRESS.

WASHINGTON, May 10.—I had a chat with Judge Kelley to-night regarding some of the changes which have taken place in congress since he first entered it away back at the beginning of the war. Judge Kelley said: "I think the general behavior of congressmen is better now than it was then. There is more courtesy among the members. They are better dressed and there is less intemperance. When I first came to congress there was scarcely a committee room which had not a full supply of liquor. In the office of the clerk of the house there was an abundant supply of whisky, and many of the members made a practice of going there for liquor. The liquors in the restaurants of the basement were more open than they are now. A regular bar was kept and no such name as cold tea was used for whisky straight. There was more intemperance upon the floor, and the drink about the clerk's office became so common that John W. Forney, when he wanted to be secretary of the senate, had to make a pledge to Vice-President Wilson and Charles Sumner that no liquors would be kept in the office of the secretary of the senate before they would vote for him. Mr. Forney told me he was very glad to do this as it relieved him of great expense and much annoyance. He was a good-hearted fellow, and he kept up the custom in his office of clerk of the house because at that time he could not very well do otherwise. It must have cost him a large part of his salary."

"It is said that oratory in congress is on the decline."

"I think that is true," replied Judge Kelley; "the business of congress has changed in late years, and it is now done by consultation of leading members of congress by a committee and by caucus. Speeches do not have much influence upon legislation now, and this influence seems to grow less from year to year. The size of the house of representatives has largely increased since I came to congress. When I entered it it was on the basis of the census of 1850, and the house was further reduced, there being no members here from the southern states. I don't suppose the house of representatives will ever contain a less number of men than it does now. Members will not consent to have their own districts cut off, but it certainly should not be larger. The ratio of apportionment should be increased so as to keep it where it is. It is already an unwieldy body, and it was due to the increase of the size of the house that it was possible to pass a rule giving all legislative power to one committee. As to the lobby of to-day I don't think it is so numerous or so powerful as it was in the past, and on the whole I think that congress is growing better as the world grows older."

An army friend of Gen. Logan tells me that Logan speaks Spanish like a native, and that he is a good Latin scholar. "I was in the army with him," said he, "and was much about his headquarters. He is by no means a poorly educated man. He is fond of the classics, and often quotes from Caesar or Virgil. In early days he was somewhat profane, and he could vomit forth upon occasion a set of epithets that would swear the twist out of a corkscrew. He is now a Christian and an humble one, and if he does get off a word in his excitement which begins with a big D it is a slip of the tongue and he is sorry for it afterward. He swears on such occasion as the vulgar swear. Their profanity comes from a paucity of metaphor and adjective. They have not the Anglo-Saxon at the moment to express their feeling, and profanity supplies their want. Logan is a very brave man. I remember once being in a party with him in which a person said he should think an unconquered man would fear to go forth to battle, whereupon Logan replied: "The man who is afraid to go to battle when his duty demands it is a coward." Logan is a good story teller and a good fellow. He improves upon acquaintance, and he has a great deal more brains than many people give him credit for."

"Stephen A. Douglas might have had the democratic nomination for the presidency in 1860 over James Buchanan," so said Mr. Charles R. Button, the confidential friend and relative of Mr. Douglas, to me not long ago. "I was at the Cincinnati convention which nominated Buchanan, and I held in my pocket a letter from Douglas which I was to give to the convention withdrawing the name of Mr. Douglas in favor of Buchanan. If at any time it should seem to be for the best interest of the party that he should be nominated, I found at Cincinnati that the sentiment was generally in favor of Douglas, though his following was not organized and it had not been worked up by wire pulling and other political methods. The support of Buchanan was of a different nature, and the men who were pushing him did everything they could to gain votes. I remember I was stopping at the Burnett house, where were some Irish Rynders and others of the Buchanan leaders. The night before the nomination these men asked me to come down to the saloon in the basement of the hotel. I went with them, and they showed me there scattered upon the floor great piles of gold and what was then a very large amount of money. "Here, gentlemen," said they, "is our campaign fund. We have $100,000 here to elect Buchanan president! Now you are for Douglas. But Douglas is young and can wait. This is the last chance 'Old Buck' can have to show him over! Join with us and nominate him, and four years from now we will give you our solid vote and hearty support for the little giant of Illinois."

The morning of the nomination a letter was put into my hands from Douglas, instructing me to read it to the convention after the first ballot. It was that letter which secured Buchanan's nomination. The first ballot gave him a bare majority of the votes cast, and he had to have two-thirds. With Douglas in the field he could never have been nominated, and I am confident that the nomination of Stephen A. Douglas would have been secured. Nevertheless, Buchanan was hardly in the presidential chair before he began to plot against Douglas. He tried to prevent his re-election to the senate, and his secret agents were working against Douglas during that great senatorial campaign against Lincoln. The Lincoln-Douglas senatorial campaign was a very expensive one. It cost Douglas $80,000 and Lincoln spent about $40,000.

Tom Reed, of Maine, tells me that the present session of congress will end without doing anything else but passing the appropriation bills. Said he:

"If the democratic house intended to do anything we would be kept here far into the summer, but it is easy to see that they will do nothing. They will talk and talk and then pass the appropriation bills and adjourn. The republicans have given them a chance to make a good record. They have not clogged legislation by factious opposition as the democrats always did when they were in the minority. They have not tried to obstruct the session, and they will not. The bill will come up probably about the middle of May, and if any discussion is allowed at all much time will be consumed, and I do not see how we can adjourn before July 1, or for some time later."

Mr. Reed says that the present congress is a fair average representation of the people. He thinks that congress is always up to the people and when the people grow better congress will improve in the same proportion. Senator Manderson tells me that the high license law of Nebraska works very well. The saloons pay a license of $1,000 apiece yearly, and this money is turned into the school fund. There are 160 saloons in Omaha, and they pay $160,000 every year towards the schools. Before this law was enacted there were a large number of groggeries and other saloons in Omaha. The law at once reduced the number to 80, and increased the school tax to $80,000. Omaha has grown very rapidly, from 35,000 in 1880, to 65,000 and more, now, and the saloons have doubled with the population, so that there are now 160. Senator Manderson says Nebraska is growing like a green bay tree, and that its population and wealth is increasing in all parts of the state.

I saw Secretary Bayard and his daughter walking together in McPherson's square yesterday. Both were in deep mourning. Miss Bayard was clothed in black, and even her parasol was of crepe. The secretary wore a tall silk black hat, with a mourning band running up to within a half inch of the top. His step was, however, springy, and he looked well. Later in the day I saw the ladies of the Bayard family riding along Pennsylvania avenue in their carriage. The coachman and footman were in a mourning livery, and both wore tall hats, with black bands around them and black rosettes at the top. Their black livery was buttoned close up to the neck, and they wore black gloves and neckties.

Kansas men are very proud of their own state. They believe it to be the future great state of the Union, and they like to talk about its wonderful possibilities. Senator Ingalls says it is the focal state of the Union, and that it has all the surroundings for the highest development of moral, intellectual and material greatness. It contains the best product of New England. It has now more than 1,400,000 population, and it ought to support 5,000,000. Located where the eastern and western civilizations meet each other, it has the better qualities of both. Its soil is so wonderfully fertile that twenty-five years of cultivation without manuring has not reduced its product. The state grows rapidly in cultivated area, and the immigration this year is almost as large as it was when the state was first opened. Its manufactures are increasing, and it has as good an educational system as you will find in any state in the Union.

Mr. Morris McDonald and Dr. R. C. Knoefel voted at the democratic primary election at New Albany, Friday afternoon. Both of these gentlemen have heretofore been prominent republicans.

A lodge of Knights of Pythias, with thirty-six charter members, will be instituted in Wabash about June 1. Wabash is said to be the only county seat in Indiana without a K. of P. lodge.

Ira C. Gunn, of Franklin township, Clark county, slipped and fell headforemost into a deep well at his home, but before striking the bottom he grabbed the well rope and broke the fall, and then climbed out.

The conviction of Nathaniel S. Bates for murder is the first of the kind in Wayne county for sixty-four years. There were two previous, with one equalling the Bates case in its atrocity, and both cases ended in the hanging of the culprit.

Hon. Jacob L. Sailors, of Wabash, ex-member of the legislature and a gentleman well known throughout Central Indiana, was stricken with paralysis at his residence on Saturday evening, and for a time his condition was considered critical. He is now improving.

The democrats of the Second congressional district will meet in convention at Washington Thursday, May 20, for the purpose of nominating a candidate for congress. Hon. John H. O'Neal, of Washington, it is said, has the inside track. Thomas R. Cobb, the present representative, is not a candidate, having declared himself out of politics.

The democratic primaries at New Albany passed off very orderly. S. M. Stockslager received the nomination for congressman, George H. Bicknell for circuit judge, Harry A. Buerk for prosecuting attorney, Charles I. Jewett for representative. Hon. John H. O'Neal, of Washington, it is said, has the inside track. Thomas R. Cobb, the present representative, is not a candidate, having declared himself out of politics.

They Held Him Down.

Wm. Yergens, jr., 136 Broadway, was the victim who was held down and made to "come to time," but he justly and promptly defied his accusers and came to the scratch smilingly, and in a very bland manner frowned down the charges brought against him. The first person called testified that she had contracted with the accused to have her house papered, and that said contractor had not faithfully performed his part of the contract.

The outgrowth of the whole affair was that Mr. Yergens, in honor to himself, his trade and his customers, had put a paper on the walls worth fully fifty per cent. more than the contract called for. On being questioned how he could afford to put up such elegant and costly decorations at such low prices, he said: "I have the finest line of wall paper in the city, employ thirty-five experienced workmen and buy my stock low enough to give my customers the benefit of the prices."

The verdict was that he be discharged and that he be entitled to the highest respect of the community. When you contemplate papering or painting your residence, don't forget Yergens, 136 Broadway. 11413

Is Played by a Storm at Kansas City.

The Court House, School Building, Factory and River Bridge are Shattered.

Twelve Dead Bodies are Picked Up and Many More Lie in the Debris.

GREAT DESTRUCTION.

Kansas City Stormed and Twelve Persons Killed.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., May 11.—A storm visited here at noon to-day. The court house was demolished and a number of persons were hurt there. The Lathrop school was wrecked and many children caught in the ruins. Seven are said to have been killed. An overall factory was blown down. Five deaths are reported and fifteen others badly injured.

One span at the north end of the railroad bridge across the Missouri river was blown into the river, blocking several railroads.

Eight bodies have been taken out of the overall factory. There are many others in the ruins, but there is scarcely a hope for their lives. The fury of the storm was confined to the north end of the city, excepting the destruction of the Lathrop public school building.

A FRIGHTFUL WRECK.

A Train Smashed and Three Men Killed.

PITTSBURG, May 11.—A freight wreck in the mountains on the Pennsylvania railroad last night demolished twenty-five cars, killed three men outright, and obstructed the tracks so badly it will take twelve hours to clear them. The accident was the result of a heavy storm which swept along the Conemaugh valley last night. Near Conemaugh the tornado picked up empty cars on the siding and carried them to the main track. A heavy west bound freight train going thirty miles an hour crashed into the obstruction. Conductor Thomas Connors, Engineer Thomas Mowry and Fireman Michael Myers were killed almost instantly. The rest escaped with slight injuries.

A Prize Fight Stopped.

CHICAGO, May 11.—The Burke-Mitchell fight last night was attended by about 5,000 people, and was an exciting battle. Neither man had much advantage to the eighth round (the number of rounds agreed upon) and the referee ordered two more rounds. In these last two Mitchell had much the best of it and looked the fresher when the tenth round ended, but the referee decided it a draw, as the police refused to allow another round to be fought.

The Home Rule Bill.

LONDON, May 11.—In the house of commons yesterday, Premier Gladstone in a lengthy speech moved the second reading of the Irish home rule bill. Lord Hartington followed in opposition, and moved a second reading six months hence. The debate was then adjourned to Thursday next.

The queen went to Liverpool to open the international exhibition.

LAWRENCE, Kas., May 11.—Word has just reached here from a camp meeting, forty miles south, that during a high wind, Sunday, a tent, in which were 250 people, was blown down and three persons were killed, Mr. and Mrs. Jackson and a small babe. CIVIL-SERVICE REFORM

Civil-service reform comes hard, because the evils against which it is aimed have been long entrenched in the body politic and can only be removed by heroic treatment. Because an abuse is of long standing, however, is no reason why it should be tolerated, and the assertion of such a principle is without rhyme or reason. Diseases which afflict the human body are not looked upon as blessings because long endured, nor should those which afflict the state be considered so. Everything which is inconsistent with the most perfect working of the body and government must be gotten rid of. Such, at least, is the belief of Mr. W. D. Murphy, of No. 310 Yandes street, Indianapolis, who has recently been cured of rheumatism of twenty-five years standing by that great remedy, Athlophoros. Age gave the disease its charm in his eyes, and he swept it away at the first opportunity. He himself tells all about the matter in this way:

"My rheumatism dates way back about twenty-five years. I first contracted it in the war, in which I served four years and six months. After returning home from service the disease seemed to assume a periodical form. I would have at least two severe attacks every year, but even between these attacks I would suffer all the time. These attacks prevented me from getting about, and many times I could not walk or get out of bed. They would catch me in the legs so that after standing awhile I would feel suddenly weak and in danger of falling."

"Was it during one of these attacks that you used Athlophoros?" Mr. Murphy was asked.

"Yes; that's the time and that's when it did its work for me. I saw it advertised and sent to B. Brehm, the druggist on Columbia avenue, for a bottle. It was in the afternoon I took the first dose and then at night I took another. I slept soundly that night. The next morning when I awoke I had no pain. I took a few doses more, only using about two-thirds of a bottle altogether and my rheumatism was all gone. That is over a year ago and I have only felt a little twinge of the pain since, but nothing to speak of."

"Do you know of any others who have used Athlophoros?"

"Yes. I have recommended it to many different persons. My confidence was so great in the medicine that in several instances I have bought bottles of it and given them to people, saying at the time that if it did not do its work they need not pay for it; but there is not a single case in which I did not have my money within a week. There is Mrs. Wright, an aged lady of seventy, living a few miles from here, who, after suffering from rheumatic pains for fifteen years, was entirely rid of all pain by three or four bottles of Athlophoros. I recommended another lady, who was supposed to be suffering from dyspepsia, but who in reality had neuralgia of the stomach, to try Athlophoros, and it soon cured her. My neighbor, who had a severe attack of neuralgia, his face being swollen out of all shape, was cured by a few doses. My confidence in Athlophoros is very strong, and I believe that if any one suffering with rheumatism or neuralgia will take it right it will cure ninety-nine cases out of a hundred. It is worth $100 a bottle to every sufferer from rheumatism."

If you cannot get ATHLOPHOROS of your druggist, we will send it express paid, on receipt of regular price—one dollar per bottle. We prefer that you buy it from your druggist, but if he hasn't it, do not be persuaded to try something else, but order at once from us, as directed, ATHLOPHOROS CO., 112 West Street, New York.

There Are a Few Druggists who care more to make a large profit on a worthless article than to wait for the prosperity that ultimately results from honest dealing. These are the men who when asked for a Benson's Capsule Plaster, will recommend some cheap and trashy substitute or imitation, saying it is "just as good." Sometimes they will do up and sell the miserable imitation without remark, allowing the customer to suppose he has Benson's. If the valueless plaster is returned, Cheap John will say he made a mistake. If not, he has done a good stroke of business. The public are cautioned against Cheap John and his ilk. Buy of respectable druggists only. The genuine Benson's plaster has the "three stars" trade mark and the word "Capsule" cut in the center. 37-17

A POPULAR term formerly in use for the nails on the ten fingers was the ten "commandments," which, says Nares, doubtless led to the swearing by them, as the real commandments. In the same way the fingers were also called the ten bones, and it was a common thing to use the exclamation, "By these ten bones."

A CHERRY tree stood in the way of the Southern Pacific narrow gauge railway extension that is being pushed at Almaden, and the owner asked about $900 for the tree. Experts were appointed, and he then showed that it had for years yielded him crops each of which sold for sums equivalent to the interest on the amount above named. They finally agreed to award him $600, and the tree had to go.

A CINCINNATI pickpocket, seeing a young man with a young woman on each arm, deftly relieved him of his watch. The young man saw the deed and tried to grab the thief, but the girl, going to his arms and cried, "Don't go; he'll kill you," and more to that effect, until the thief got well away. They were not confederates of the pickpocket, either, but nice average Ohio girls, who were bound the young man shouldn't get hurt.

OF the wife of President Knott, of Union College, it is said that while her health permitted she made it a duty to know personally every student in each class, and she never forgot a face or a name, always recognizing an alumnus, and with the greatest animation recalling little incidents of his college days. It was her custom to invite the boys, one or two at a time, to take tea and spend an evening with her.

LOVE letters at breach of promise suits are usually amusing, but none more so than one written by an English young man, which was of such a strain as the following: "Dearest, most charming, superlative Sally—I am longing really for the time to come when I shall have you in a home, a bower of lovers' bliss, where we can coo and bill all the day long. We shall soon have a splash, dash-up wedding of our own, and then we shall take the shine out of them."

JOHN BROWN, as all the world knows, was Queen Victoria's favorite servant. The true manner of Brown's death—the actual facts were suppressed at the time—was quite curious. He had set an ingenious man-trap for poachers; it was so ingenious, in fact, that he himself forgot just how it worked. As a result, in climbing a fence he was caught in his own trap, and found himself suspended by his heels, head downward. It was several hours before he was discovered and rescued. Fatal results followed.

A GENTLEMAN who was engaged for years in searching Chinese steamers states that he often saw a Chinaman land at the dock in San Francisco with nothing in the world in the shape of capital, except a fishing net. In about a month the same Chinaman would appear as a shipper of from three to ten tons of fish. He had associated himself with four or five others; they had secured a second-hand boat and gone to work. In a few months he was not only a shipper, but an importer, receiving large lots of rice, sugar, dried fowls, and other articles of Chinese food, as well as clothing.

AMONG reigning sovereigns who have written books are Queen Victoria, Dom Pedro II. of Brazil, Dom Luis of Portugal, the Shah, Oscar II. of Sweden, Prince Nikita of Montenegro, Ludwig II. of Bavaria, and Queen Elizabeth of Roumania; and among princes and princesses who have dabbled in literature are the Princess Christian, the Crown Princess of Germany, the Princess Theresa of Bavaria, the two sons of the Prince of Wales, the two sons of the King of Sweden, the Duke of Edinburgh, and the Comte de Paris.

In one Pennsylvania county school-teachers receive $12.50 per month and are compelled to change their boarding places every week. At the end of a year of "boarding round" in this way educational ideas must be thoroughly disseminated through the community.

A MAINE lady, being advised to take an ocean voyage for her health, hired staterooms for herself and maid on one of the steamers which ply between Portland and Boston, took along all the necessary conveniences and many luxuries, and made forty trips without quitting the vessel. She was much benefited by the voyage.

THE arithmetician Dase, who died in 1861, declared that he could count thirty objects of the same kind as easily as other people could count three or four. The truth of this assertion was often proved when the arithmetician, with lightning rapidity, gave the correct number of a herd of sheep, or the books in a library, or the window-panes in a large house.

THE Watertown Times is responsible for the statement that Paddy Ryan has a double who travels with him, and personates him in barrooms and on occasions of conviviality, while the real Paddy sleeps and rests, and keeps himself in that prime condition which he hopes will one day result in his knocking out John L. Sullivan, who has no double to drink and smoke for him.

ANOTHER language myth is destroyed in the statement of a translator that the Russian is a very easy language to acquire. He strengthens his opinion with the explanation that the verbs are comparatively regular and have but three tenses, while the conditional mood is indicated by a particle "bui." The language is not so difficult as its collection of consonants, so curious to a foreigner, might seem.

AN Alabama newspaper seriously tells its readers that 4-year-old Dillie Welsh and a small Jersey calf are great friends. One day Dillie went to an unused well and peeped over the low curb. The calf saw her, and seized her dress in its mouth. The little girl lost her balance and fell over the curb, but the calf hung on, and for half an hour held her thus suspended until the child was rescued. Then the calf was very happy.

THREE REASONS
Why every one needs, and should take Hood's Sarsaparilla in the spring:—

1st: Because the system is now in its greatest need. Hood's Sarsaparilla gives strength.
2d: Because the blood is sluggish and impure. Hood's Sarsaparilla purifies.
3d: Because, from the above facts, Hood's Sarsaparilla will do a greater amount of good now than any other time. Take it now.

THE Indiana State Firemen's association will hold its annual meeting at Laporte on the 19th and 20th inst., and extensive preparations are being made to receive the visiting firemen. The association at present is comprised of some fifty companies, and the membership is continually increasing. Each company is entitled to three delegates to the above meeting, and as many other firemen have signified their intention to be present, the convention promises to be very largely attended.

What can be more disagreeable, more disgusting, than to sit in a room with a person who is troubled with catarrh, and has to keep coughing and clearing his or her throat of the mucus which drops into it? Such persons are always to be pitied if they try to cure themselves and fail. But if they get Dr. Sage's Catarrh remedy there need be no failure.

Squire Thaddeus Lewis, of Shelbyville, while coming up from Waldron on a Big Four train yesterday morning, had his pocket picked of $75.

Frank A. Myers, editor of the Washington Gazette, has filed a complaint against John A. Geeting and Alexander Chomel for libel, placing his damages at $15,000.

When Baby was sick, we gave her Castoria,
When she was a Child, she cried for Castoria,
When she became Miss, she clung to Castoria,
When she had Children, she gave them Castoria.

The Wabash city school board has appointed Prof. W. H. Harrison, of Auburn, Ind., superintendent of the public schools of Wabash, to succeed Prof. D. W. Thomas, who resigned to accept a situation at Elkhart. There were over fifty applications for the position, the salary of which is $1,200 per annum.

ADVISE TO MOTHERS.—Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup should always be used when children are cutting teeth. It relieves the little sufferers at once; it produces natural, quiet sleep by relieving the child from pain, and the little cherub awakes as "bright as a button." It is very pleasant to taste. It soothes the child, softens the gums, allays all pain, relieves wind, regulates the bowels, and is the best known remedy for diarrhoea, whether arising from teething or other causes. Twenty-five cents a bottle. Jan. 19-codawly.

A CORRESPONDENT of the Conyers (Georgia) Solid South says there is a colored preacher near Jasper who rules his horse by butting him. If the animal is fractious or stubborn he takes the kinks out by deliberately seizing it by the ears and butting it squarely in the forehead until it falls to its knees. This it generally does at the second or third butt, when the old man steps behind and drives ahead again.

ONE of the latest books to circulate in the Canton bazaar is a Chinese version of "The Pilgrim's Progress." The little volume is illustrated with pictures drawn and engraved by Chinese artists. In these Christian appears in Chinese costume, the House Beautiful as a Chinese pagoda, and throughout the book all the scenes and incidents are depicted in a garb familiar to the people for whom the book is intended.

WHAT is the natural term of a carp's life? The question is suggested by the announcement by the Berlin papers that a fish of this kind has been taken from the Spree at the age of 268 years. Some days ago a fisher was plying his vocation when, like his olden predecessors, he was favored with a mighty draught. His catch consisted of a carp beneath whose mouth a ring was found affixed. Scratches upon this ring, we are told, make it clear that the fish was placed in the water in the year 1618, or nearly two and three-quarters centuries ago. This venerable inhabitant of the Spree weighed thirty-six pounds, and measured a hundred centimeters in length and seventy-eight centimeters in circumference.

Is Your Liver out of Order.

Then is your whole system deranged—the blood is impure, the breath offensive, you have a headache, feel languid, dispirited and nervous, have no appetite, your sleep is troubled and unrefreshing. To prevent a more serious condition, take at once a half tablespoonful of Simmons Liver Regulator, three times a day—it will soon restore the healthy action of the liver, bowels and kidneys.

"I recommend Simmons Liver Regulator to all my friends, as I have personally known it to cure all liver disorders and sick headache."
Beverly, N. J.

The Sunnyside coal mines, near Evansville, have been sold under an order of court for $10,855, to David Mackey and M. R. Anthes, of that city.

They are Not Sorry.

There is one thing nobody ever regrets—that is, the day they first adopted Parker's Tonic as their regular family medicine. Its range is so wide, and its good effects so sure, that nothing else, except good nursing, are needed in a great majority of cases. Buy it, try it, and afterwards it will not require any praise from us.

I think Ely's Cream Balm is the best remedy for catarrh I ever saw. I never took anything that relieved me so quickly and I have not felt so well for a long time. I used to be troubled with severe headaches two or three times a week, but since using the balm have only had one and that was very light compared with the former ones.—A. J. Alcorn, agent U. P. Ry Co., Eaton, Co.

ANTI-KALSOMIN.

We are now the agents for the only permanent wall finish Anti-Kalsomine.

It covers as well as kalsomine, need never be washed to be renewed; will take a hundred coats if necessary, without cracking, chalking or peeling off. It is sanitary in its composition, kalsomine is not. It is also an excellent primer for outside as well as inside work; it fills the pores of the wood better than white lead, ochre or any known pigment; makes a more solid surface, is much cheaper than ochre or lead, and is the best covering for walls known. Try it and be convinced.

We have also a large stock of wall paper patterns, ceiling decorations and borders, mixed paints, brushes, artists materials, etc. Give us a call at the paint and paper store of Wilding & Son, 191 Calhoun street. 13-1m

NO HAIR!!

How often we see no hair on the top of a head, nor on a face that would improve with it, even after repeated applications of so-called hair restorers. I have a remedy for this. THE SIBERIAN HAIR RESTORER was discovered by a scientific exile while confined in the mines of Siberia, and will positively produce hair. As a restorer it is without a rival, and a trial will convince anyone of its remarkable qualities. It is put on the market at the low price of 50 cents to enable the most skeptical to give it a trial and convince themselves of its genuineness. On receipt of the same in postage stamps or postal note it will be forwarded under cover free of charge to any part of the United States. THE NEW YORK CROOK.

SOME OF HIS INGENUOUS METHODS OF MAKING A LIVING.

Attractive Appearance of Crooks—Where They Congregate—A Toy Type-Writer Scheme—How a Crook Made a Little Fortune Out of Editors.

(Special Correspondence.)

NEW YORK, May 10.—We hear so much about "bunko" and the ingenious but simple lottery scheme which is used to extract the dollars from the pockets of the unwary rural visitor, that we are wont to look upon the bunko game as the principal employment of the genus crook. The fact is that bunko is fast going out of date, and is fast being supplanted by more ingenious and less familiar modes of swindling. Not long ago I was strolling up Park row, when I chanced to meet a lawyer somewhat prominent in a certain class of criminal cases. After a few moments' chat I invited him to accompany me to the theatre.

"No, I have to see a client of mine. Come with me and I'll show you a new phase of life. I'll introduce you to the 'crooks.'"

I would say here that the word "crook" is not applied indiscriminately to any one who may be "crooked" in his manner of obtaining the property of his fellowman, though that is undoubtedly the derivation of the term. A crook is not a pickpocket or common thief, but a confidence operator, and to be a successful crook requires good address, a quick judgment of human nature, much brains and no end of the coolest, most gentlemanly assurance. The lawyer's invitation chimed in with my lazy mood, and, hailing a passing hansom, we were whirled to our destination, an unpretentious little barroom not far from Chatham square. I followed my guide through the front room, or bar, which was exactly like hundreds of others in the city, into a back room, quiet and comfortably furnished. There were perhaps a dozen well-dressed young men in the room, seated at the tables, reading the papers or chatting. I was at once struck by the kindly manners and attractive appearance of these young men, and a few words of introduction from my legal friend put me on the best of terms with them all.

"That is better than representing yourself to be a needy artist and selling $2 oil daubs in $1 Dutch gold frames for $25 or $30 each through the country," remarked one of the party.

"Decidedly. There is more money in it. Besides, picture peddling is too much like book canvassing," assented another.

"Well, judicious advertising is the best game after all," remarked the first speaker. "There are hundreds of fellows all over the country making good livings out of advertising the old dodge of 'How to Become Rich,' and the public seem to be totally forgetful of the fact that if a man knew how to get rich he'd do it himself and not waste his time and money in advertising."

"So you are an editor?" said one, a bright, energetic-looking young fellow, who looked for all the world like a rising young merchant or broker. "Well, I made quite a little pile out of your brethren of the pen last summer. I was strolling up Fulton street one day when I chanced to spy one of those toy typewriters in a window. It was simply a wire with an alphabet of rubber letters strung on it and retailed for $1. An idea struck me and I went into the place and made a bargain with the man to buy 100 of them for $50, paid $10 deposit, and took one of the machines home to play with. It struck me that the average editor considers himself particularly well posted and would, therefore, be unwary and good game. I had a lot of circulars printed stating that, 'The Typewriter Exchange and Repairing Company' made a specialty of dealing in second-hand typewriters, and that it now had on hand a large number of machines more or less used, but all in good condition. These I put down in three classes, at $25, $40 and $60, respectively, and wound up with a glowing eulogy upon the merits of the typewriter as a labor saving device. I took these circulars and mailed them to a carefully selected list of papers, each with a letter to the editor, telling how charmed I was with his particular paper, how I appreciated its value as an advertising medium, and offering a type writer of any of the three classes for half cash and half advertising. It was not long before the answers began to come in, and nine-tenths of the letters contained cash. To make a long story short, in less than three weeks I sold my 100 typewriters, which cost me 60 cents each, at an average of $30 apiece, and all to editors. But then now the abusive letters began to pour in. They were positively tiresome, except one man, who wrote that I was an informal swindler, but that if I sent a circular to the editor of the rival paper, in the next town, I'd catch him, and the writer would call things square. I sent the circular and caught the editor." The young man paused, and one of the company broke in with:

"That is like Bob's old game of advertising fine steel engravings of Washington, Franklin and Garfield for fifty cents each and sending one, three and five cent postage stamps in reply."

"Advertising pays," commented a handsome young fellow, with a drawl in his voice and a drooping blonde mustache. "Last spring I had nothing to do, and only about $300 in my pockets. I knew if I stayed in New York I should blow it in at faro, so I decided to take a run up to Poughkeepsie. I provided myself before going with a lot of photographs of good-looking girls and put up at the best hotel in the place. Then I sent a 'Personal' advertisement to a big newspaper in New York, Philadelphia and Boston:

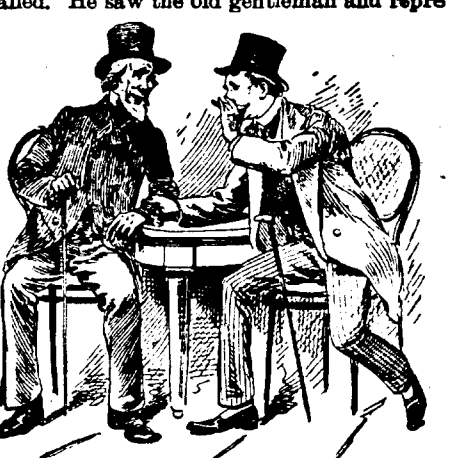

A YOUNG LADY, RECENTLY GRADUATED FROM YASSER, possessing decided dramatic ability, would, wishes to meet a liberal, honorable gentleman, who will assist her in fitting for the stage. Address: YOLO, Box 10, Poughkeepsie, P. O.

"The answers came in perfect stacks. I did not know there were so many enthusiastic patrons of the drama. I carefully selected the best and opened a correspondence. I can write a lady's hand. After I had hooked my fish I sent on a photograph. Then I explained that I would need from $25 to $100 to get to New York, Boston or Philadelphia, as the case might be, and as I thought my victim would stand, and the notes began to come in. I cleared over $1,100 in two weeks, and concluded to close things up. I wrote to my New York admirers that I would come to town by a certain train, and asked each to meet me at the Grand Central depot with a red rose in his left buttonhole, for identification. As I walked down the platform I was greeted by the comical sight of no less than forty well-dressed men, with red roses in their left buttonholes, each trying to look unconcerned and each suspecting all the others."

"Very clever," commented one of the group, "and served the old rascals right, too. But I think Archie's picture trick was about as neat as any."

"What was that?" I inquired.

"Why, you know Archie is a very clever fellow, belongs to a good family, is a Harvard graduate; he's always up to some scheme which is simply Napoleonic in its boldness," replied the first speaker. "Not long ago an old gentleman, who is a wealthy iron manufacturer out west and a great art collector, came to New York and registered at one of the big uptown hotels. Archie had his eye on him, and early the next morning called. He saw the old gentleman and represented himself as a special partner in the firm of Goupil & Co. The house was in financial difficulties, he said, having made large purchases of expensive foreign works of art and were winding up their affairs. This was, however, a secret, and not yet known to any of the employees of the firm. They were quietly selling off the pictures now in the gallery at great sacrifice, and knowing the old gentleman to be a great admirer of art he had ventured to state the case frankly to him. The old gentleman was highly flattered and pleased and accompanied Archie down to Goupil's and went through the gallery. Archie is thoroughly posted on art matters, and offered the pictures at what the old gentleman knew to be about half their values. Before he left he had ordered about $7,000 worth of paintings at Archie's reduced prices. 'Now,' said Archie, 'we know you to be perfectly good, so if you will give us your check for $5,000 to bind the purchase we will have the pictures packed and shipped to you at once, and you can remit the balance at any time within thirty days. The old gentleman drew the check, and Archie went up to the cashier's desk, borrowed a piece of paper and wrote out a formal receipt, which he gave to the old gentleman, who went off in high glee over his purchases. Archie cashed the check at once, and took a trip to Florida for recreation. Of course the pictures were not sent. Goupil's people had no idea of winding up, and the old gentleman was obliged to pocket his loss."

"That is better than representing yourself to be a needy artist and selling $2 oil daubs in $1 Dutch gold frames for $25 or $30 each through the country," remarked one of the party.

"Decidedly. There is more money in it. Besides, picture peddling is too much like book canvassing," assented another.

"Well, judicious advertising is the best game after all," remarked the first speaker. "There are hundreds of fellows all over the country making good livings out of advertising the old dodge of 'How to Become Rich,' and the public seem to be totally forgetful of the fact that if a man knew how to get rich he'd do it himself and not waste his time and money in advertising."

The conversation became desultory, and the company began to break up, but I had heard enough to convince me that there is a large class of men, larger than any one supposes, who devote their time and talents, which are of no mean order, to swindling their fellow-men. New schemes are constantly being invented and the old ones being cast aside. As one of the party remarked as I left:

"About the only safe rule to go by is that whenever a man offers you $2 worth for $1 there is a swindle somewhere."

His justification of himself and his fellows was not without weight.

"Any man who is willing to buy what he supposed to be an honest $2 worth for $1 must either suppose that the goods were stolen or that the seller is crazy. In either case he deserves to be taken in. In the great majority of cases the crooks live upon men who would be crooks themselves if they had the brains or the courage."

NATURAL GAS.

Companies Organized all About
Us to Bore for Vapor and Oil-The Money Invested by Fort Wayne
Men.

If the excitement about natural gas continues, and new companies keep on forming and starting wells, the surface of the earth throughout this state will soon
look like a porous plaster. Fort Wayne capitalists are discussing the advisability of organizing a company to bore for gas
at the Huntington stone quarries or near Huntstown, in this county, where oil bubbled up some years ago. Yesterday
three companies filed articles of association with the secretary of state. They are the Bluffton Petroleum and Gas
Mining company of Portland, with a capital stock of $30,000 and L. A. Williams, A. J. Stewart, E. H. Montgomery,
W. S. Silver, N. T. Miller, Jacob North,
W. A. Guleaus and G. W. Grimes as directors; the Portland (Jay county) Gas
and Oil Well company, with a capital stock of $2,500 and Henry W. Lees, D.
E. Paul, Michael Lephurt, Robert Stevenson and W. N. Current as directors; and the Eaton (Delaware county) Mining and Gas company, with a capital stock of $100,000 and W. W. Worthington, R. C.
Bell, B. F. Smith, Jesse Nixon, A. N.
Forman, R. W. and G. W. Carter as directors. A gentleman who has recently come from Portland says that there is enough natural gas underlying that town
to supply the whole state and have plenty to spare, and that the citizens
there are in quandary what to do with
it. Gen. T. A. Morris says that for many years there has been a flow of natural gas in the town of Francesville,
Pulaski county, which has frequently lighted at night and blazes up to a height of many feet.

Emma Molloy Replies to George Graham.

She Gives an Itemized Denial to the Shameful Charges the Murderer Made,

And Closes With an Appeal, Rather Eloquent, for Her Own Vindication.

MRS. EMMA MOLLOY.

She Replies to the Charges of George Graham.

SPRINGFIELD, Mo., May 11.—Interest in the Graham-Molloy case, which was somewhat dampened by the lynching of Graham, is reawakened by a statement of Mrs. Emma Molloy, which has been given out by her attorneys. The statement is confined almost entirely to a refutation of the scandalous charges made against the two women by Graham, soon after his arrest, in his so-called confession.

MRS. MOLLOY'S STATEMENT.

SPRINGFIELD, Mo., May 11.—Mrs. Emma Molloy has for some time been engaged in collecting and preparing proofs refuting the statements made by George E. Graham, who was recently lynched at this place. The work was completed to-day, and is now given to the press. The statement is as follows: To the Public:

For several weeks my friends all over the United States have been imploring me for the refutation of the scandalous charges made by George E. Graham in his "statement" which was launched upon the world while we were in the midst of a preliminary examination, under charge of a crime which was committed when I was three hundred miles away, and of which I had not the slightest knowledge until I read it in the newspapers. Did I believe that Cora Lee Graham was capable of participation in so horrible an affair, or that she could ever have connived at, or consented to, or ever known of, or concealed so unnatural a crime, I should never set pen to paper in her defense in any way; but I do believe in her innocence, not only of the crime charged by the courts, but the knowledge that she was an unlawful wife, of the slanderous assertions of Graham, who in one breath declares her to be the one woman of all the world to him, and in the next charges her with criminality such as could only be practiced by the vilest woman.

I have always believed and still believe her to be one of the most conscientious of women, and had she been in her statement represents—so loose in all her ideas of morality and virtue—there had been no need for George Graham to have risked imprisonment to make her his wife. I am aware that it is impossible in a brief newspaper article to present anything like a lucid history of the connection of Graham with my family. This would require the relation of details and the publishing of correspondence that would fill a volume. I expect, if spared, soon to issue a history of my prison and reform work, which will read like a romance, and will present quite another side of the case than has been given to the public. The world may then, perhaps, not wonder so much that we were deceived, for the public has been made aware that this man had no ordinary brain.

Then Mrs. Molloy goes into an itemized contradiction of all the charges and accusations made by George Graham, backing her assertions by letters and affidavits and tracing her movements in the west. With this she closes her three column defense as follows:

So it will be seen how very readily these charges are disproved. Yet I do not write this with the expectation of total recovery from this murderous assault. Any woman may be slandered in this country in the same way. Character, like life, seems in these days to have no value, if a few dollars are to be made by its destruction. When a woman's reputation is thrust under the judgment of the American press by so vile a pen, as was wielded in this case, it is impossible to wholly undo its work. Over the electric wires it has crept into homes where I was beloved as a sister, from the Atlantic to the Pacific. I received a letter to-day from Halifax, Nova Scotia, saying, "I have loved and esteemed you for your great work's sake, and though I know nothing of the circumstances, and am 2,500 miles distant, I feel sure the charges are untrue, and you will come out of the fire all right." Yet there are thousands who have read the charges, who will never read the refutation. My own has been prejudiced before a witness on my side has been heard, or a shred of rebutting evidence given. I can only hope this statement may reassure my friends who have stood by me in the storm, and make the world a little more tender to the orphan children whose prospects have been so clouded in this great calamity. The thoughtless men who have hurled to the world this vile calumny owe it to these children, as well as to myself, that they give this refutation as wide publicity as they have the slander. As I think of their blasted lives, and look into their sorrowful faces, and into the grave of my usefulness, and witness the humiliation of my parents, and brothers and sisters, whose pride has been the unspeaking record of our family, I can but ask what has been gained by the publication of this filth to the world? It has been like opening a charnel house whose very breath has carried moral disease and death into thousands of homes.

DeQuincy, in one of his essays, treats of "murder as a fine art." Has it not become so in America, when the press lends its aid to a criminal guilty of the blackest crimes to continue his murderous work and destroy the woman whose crime was her credulity in believing that "salvation could reach the uttermost?" George Graham gave his wife the blessed luxury of an immediate death. To the victims of his treachery and deceit he has awarded a torture as exquisite in its anguish as it is slow in its consummation. The memory of that horrible murder will forever be a canker, blighting all joy and his name, so unjustly linked with mine in that awful crime, it seems to me was enough, without this added slander. It has been my earnest desire ever since I can remember to do good in this world, and to live so that those who came in contact with me should be happier and better for that contact. Only God can know the soul agony I have endured as I have read daily the false caricatures of that life—caricatures that contained not a shadow of truth—and I think of the little children whom I have loved, all over this land, who have thus been made to regard me as a monster of vice and crime, of the thousands of friends who have been made cold and distrustful, and

Even my last cry will be answered, I am aware, but this is not written for those who have gloried in my calamity or wished my destruction; it is for my friends all over this land who have believed in my honesty of purpose. To them I wish to say, though I have made grievous mistakes, I have had most honest intentions, and surely no one has suffered more in this cyclone than

THE STRIKE.

CHICAGO.

THE HOTELS ARE POISONED.

CHICAGO, May 11.—It has been ascertained that of the Polish and Bohemian rioters who drank liquors when they sacked the drug store at Centre avenue and Eighteenth street, last Wednesday, eight have died and at least four more are known to be beyond recovery. Wine of Colchicum, which greatly resembles Sclerby wine, is supposed to be the agent of destruction.

There was no attempt to resume operations in the west side lumber district this morning. The lumbermen claim a great majority of the men are overawed by the Bohemian socialists who infest the region.

The total amount of contributions to the policemen's fund will almost reach $75,000.

WASHINGTON, D. C., May 11.—In the senate Mr. Hoar presented the memorial of the republican central committee of Ohio, urging that the election of Hon. Henry B. Payne be secured by bribery, fraud and corruption, and requesting that the senate investigate the matter. Referred to the committee on privileges and elections.

WASHINGTON.

The Work in Congress Important To-day.

WASHINGTON, May 11.—The senate committee on pensions to-day adopted a resolution calling on the commissioner of pensions for an estimate of the outlay required under the Ingalls bill for the removal of the limitation to the arrears of pension on.

The senate committee on military and militia ordered to-day a favorable report on the Logan bill for the equalization of bounties.

The inter-state commerce was taken up.

The ways and means committee to-day received the report of the sub-committee adverse to the Mexican reciprocity treaty. After adopting one or two amendments the committee rose and the bill passed.

Mr. Lowry, from the committee on elections, submitted the unanimous report of the committee on the California contested election cases. The report, which confirms the right of all sitting members, was agreed to.

The house went into committee of the whole on the army appropriation bill.

Secretary Whitney is credited with having purchased ex-Secretary Chandler's interest in the National Republican of this city, for $10,000 cash, and thirty or forty thousand dollars in interest-bearing notes. The transfer is said to have occurred a month ago, and to this is ascribed the appearance in a supposed republican newspaper of articles friendly in tone to Senator Payne, of Ohio, in connection with the charges of bribery in securing his seat.

THE WORK IN CONGRESS.

WASHINGTON, May 10.—I had a chat with Judge Kelley to-night regarding some of the changes which have taken place in congress since he first entered it away back at the beginning of the war. Judge Kelley said: "I think the general behavior of congressmen is better now than it was then. There is more courtesy among the members. They are better dressed and there is less intemperance. When I first came to congress there was scarcely a committee room which had not a full supply of liquors. In the office of the clerk of the house there was an abundant supply of whiskey, and many of the members made a practice of going there for liquor. The liquor in the restaurants of the basement were more open than they are now. A regular bar was kept and no such name as cold tea was used for whiskey straight. There was more intemperance upon the floor, and the drinking about the clerk's office became so common that John W. Foster, when he wanted to be secretary of the senate, had to make a pledge to Vice-President Wilson and Charles Sumner that no liquors would be kept in the office of the secretary of the senate before they would vote for him. Mr. Forney told me he was very glad to do this as it relieved him of great expense and much annoyance. He was a good-hearted fellow, and he kept up the custom in his office of clerk of the house because at that time he could not very well do otherwise. It must have cost him a large part of his salary."

"It is said that oratory in congress is on the decline?" "I think that is true," replied Judge Kelley; "the business of congress has changed in late years, and it is now done by the consultation of leading members of congress, by a committee and influence upon legislation now, and this influence seems to grow less from year to year. The size of the house of representatives has largely increased since I came to congress. When I entered it it was on the basis of the census of 1850, and the house was further reduced, there being no members here from the southern states. I don't suppose the house of representatives will ever contain a less number of men than it does now. Members will not consent to have their own districts cut off, but it certainly should not be larger. The ratio of apportionment should be increased so as to keep it where it is. It is already an unwieldy body, and it was due to the increase of the size of the house that it was possible to pass a law giving all legislative power to one committee. As to the lobby of to-day I don't think it is so numerous or so powerful as it was in the past, and on the whole I think that congress is growing better as the world grows older."

An army friend of Gen. Logan tells me that Logan speaks Spanish like a native, and that he is a good Latin scholar. "I was in the army with him," said he, "and was much about his headquarters. He is by no means a poorly educated man. He is fond of the classics, and often quotes from Caesar or Virgil. In early days he was somewhat profane, and he could vomit forth upon occasion a set of epithets that would swell the twilight of a curlew. He is now a Christian and an humble one, and he has got off a word in his excitement which by the way is a slip of the tongue, and he is sorry for it afterward. He swears on such occasions as a matter of habit, and he is not a hypocrite. They have and the Anglo-Saxon at the moment to express their feeling, and profanity supplies their want. Logan is a very brave man. I remember once being in a party with him in which a person said he should think an unconverted man would fear to go forth to battle, whereupon Logan replied: "The man who is afraid to go to battle—then his duty demands it is a coward. Logan is a good story teller and a good fellow. He improves upon acquaintances, and he has a great deal more brains than many people give him credit for."

"Stephen A. Douglas might have had the Democratic nomination for the presidency in 1856 over James Buchanan," so said Mr. Charles P. Button, the confidential friend and relation of Mr. Douglas, to me not long ago. "I was at the Cincinnati convention which nominated Buchanan, and I held in my pocket a letter from Douglas which I was to give to the convention withdrawing the name of Mr. Douglas in favor of Buchanan, if at any time it should seem to be for the best interest of the party that he should be nominated. I found at Cincinnati that the sentiment was generally in favor of Douglas, though his following was not organized and it had not been worked up by wire pulling and other political methods. The support of Buchanan was of a different nature, and the men who were pushing him did everything they could to gain votes. I remember I was stopping at the Barrett house, where also were Isaiah Rynders and others of the Buchanan leaders. The night before the nomination these men asked me to come down to the saloon in the basement of the hotel. I went with them, and they showed me three scattered upon the door great piles of gold and what was then a very large amount of money. 'Here, gentlemen,' said they, 'is our campaign fund. We have $100,000 here to elect Buchanan president! Now you are for Douglas. But Douglas is young and can wait. This is the last chance 'Old Buck' can hope to have. Don't throw him over! Join with us and nominate him, and four years from now we will give you our solid vote and hearty support for the little giant of Illinois!'"

The morning of the nomination a letter was put into my hands from Douglas, instructing me to read it to the convention after the first ballot. It was that letter which secured Buchanan's nomination. The first ballot gave him a bare majority of the vote, and he had to have two-thirds. With Douglas in the field he could never have been nominated, and I am confident that the nomination of Stephen A. Douglas would have been secured. Nevertheless, Buchanan was hardly in the presidential chair before he began to plot against Douglas. He tried to prevent his re-election to the senate, and his secret agents were working against Douglas during that great senatorial campaign against Lincoln. The Lincoln-Douglas senatorial campaign was a very expensive one. It cost Douglas $90,000 and Lincoln spent about $40,000.

Tom Reed, of Maine, tells me that the present session of congress will end without doing anything else but passing the appropriation bills. Said he:

"If the Democratic house intended to do anything we would be kept here far into the summer, but it is easy to see that they will do nothing. They will talk and talk and then pass the appropriation bills and adjourn. The Republicans have given them a chance to make a good record. They have not done legislation by factious opposition as the Democrats always did when they were in the minority. They have not tried to obstruct the session, and they will not. The tariff bill will come up probably about the middle of May, and if any discussion is allowed at all much time will be consumed, and I do not see how we can adjourn before July 1, or for some time later." Mr. Reed says that the present congress is a fair average representation of the people. He thinks that congress is always up to the people and when the people grow better congress will improve in the same proportion.

Senator Manderson tells me that the high license law of Nebraska works very well. The saloons pay a license of $1,000 apiece yearly, and this money is turned into the school fund. There are 100 saloons in Omaha, and they pay $100,000 every year towards the schools. Before this law was enacted there were a large number of groggeries and other saloons in Omaha. The law at once reduced the number to 80, and increased the saloon tax to $80,000. Omaha has grown very rapidly, from 35,000 in 1880, to 65,000, and more, now; and the saloons have doubled with the population, so that there are now 160. Senator Manderson says Nebraska is growing like a green bay tree, and that its population and wealth is increasing in all parts of the state.

I saw Secretary Bayard and his daughter walking together in McPherson's square yesterday. Both were in deep mourning. Miss Bayard was dressed in black, and even her parasol was of crepe. The secretary wore a tall silk black hat, with a mourning band running up to within a half inch of the top. His step was, however, springy, and he looked well. Later in the day I saw the ladies of the Bayard family riding along Pennsylvania avenue in their carriage. The coachman and footman were in a mourning livery, and both wore tall hats, with black bands around them and black rosettes at the top. Their black livery was buttoned close up to the neck, and they wore black gloves and neckties.

Kansas men are very proud of their own state. They believe it to be the future great state of the Union, and they like to talk about its wonderful possibilities. Senator Ingalls says it is the best state of the Union, and that it has all the surroundings for the highest development of moral, intellectual and material greatness. It contains the best product of New England. It has now more than 1,400,000 population, and it ought to support 5,000,000. Located where the eastern and western civilizations meet each other, it has the better qualities of both. Its soil is so wonderfully fertile that twenty-five years of cultivation without manuring has not reduced its product. The state grows rapidly in cultivated area, and the immigration this year is almost as large as it was when the state was first opened. Its manufactures are increasing, and it has as good an educational system as you will find in any state in the Union.

They Held Him Down.

Wm. Yergens, jr., 136 Broadway, was the victim who was held down and made to "come to time," but he justly and promptly defied his accusers and came to the kerchief smilingly, and in a very bland manner frowned down the charges brought against him. The first person called testified that she had contracted with the accused to have her house repaired, and that said contractor had not faithfully performed his part of the contract.

The outgrowth of the whole affair was that Mr. Yergens, in honor to himself, his trade and his customers, had put a paper on the walls worth fifty per cent. more than the contract called for. On being questioned how he could afford to put up such elegant and costly donations at such low prices, he said: "I have the finest line of wall paper in the city, employ thirty-five experienced workmen and buy my stock low enough to give my customers the benefit of the price."

The verdict was that he be discharged and that he be entitled to the highest respect of the community. When you contemplate papering or painting your residence, don't forget Yergens, 136 Broadway. 11&13

The Court House, School Building, Factory and River Bridge are Shattered.

Twelve Dead Bodies are Picked Up and Many More Lie in the Debris.

GREAT DESTRUCTION.

Kansas City Stormed and Twelve Persons Killed.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., May 11.—A storm visited here at noon to-day. The court house was demolished and a number of persons were hurt there. The Lathrop school was wrecked and many children caught in the ruins. Seven are said to have been killed. An overall factory was blown down. Five deaths are reported and fifteen others badly injured.

One span at the north end of the railroad bridge across the Missouri river was blown into the river, blocking several railroads.

Eight bodies have been taken out of the overall factory. There are many others in the ruins, but there is scarcely a hope for their lives. The fury of the storm was confined to the north end of the city, excepting the destruction of the Lathrop public school building.

A FRIGHTFUL WRECK.

A Train Smashed and Three Men Killed.

PITTSBURGH, May 11.—A freight wreck in the mountains on the Pennsylvania railroad last night demolished twenty-five cars, killed three men outright, and obstructed the tracks so badly it will take twelve hours to clear them. The accident was the result of a heavy storm which swept along the Conemaugh valley last night. Near Conemaugh the tornado picked up empty cars on the siding and carried them to the main track. A heavy west bound freight train going thirty miles an hour crashed into the obstruction. Conductor Thomas Connor, Engineer Thomas Mowry and Fireman Michael Myers were killed almost instantly. The rest escaped with slight injuries.

A Prize Fight Stopped.

CHICAGO, May 11.—The Burke-Mitchell fight last night was attended by about 5,000 people, and was an exciting battle. Neither man had much advantage to the eighth round (the number of rounds agreed upon) and the referee ordered two more rounds. In these last two Mitchell had much the best of it and looked the fresher when the tenth round ended, but the referee decided it a draw, as the police refused to allow another round to be fought.

CIVIL-SERVICE REFORM.

Civil-service reform comes hard, because the evils against which it is aimed have been long entrenched in the body politic and can only be removed by heroic treatment. Because an abuse is of long standing, however, is no reason why it should be tolerated, and the assertion of such a principle is without rhyme or reason. Diseases which afflict the human body are not looked upon as blessings because long endured, nor should those which afflict the state be considered so. Everything which is inconsistent with the most perfect working of the body and government must be gotten rid of. Such, at least, is the belief of Mr. W. D. Murphy, of No. 310 Vanities street, Indianapolis, who has recently been cured of rheumatism of twenty-five years' standing by that great remedy, Athlophores. Age gave the disease no charm in his eyes, and he swept it away at the first opportunity. He himself tells all about the matter in this way:

"My rheumatism dates way back about twenty-five years. I first contracted it in the war, in which I served four years and six months. After returning home from service the disease seemed to assume a periodical form. I would have at least two severe attacks every year, but even between these attacks I would suffer all the time. These attacks prevented me from getting about, and many times I could not walk or get on of bed. They would catch me in the legs so that after standing awhile I would feel suddenly weak and in danger of falling."

"Was it during one of these attacks that you used Athlophores?" Mr. Murphy was asked.

"Yes; that's the time, and that's when it did its work for me. I saw it advertised and sent to B. Brehm, the druggist on Columbia avenue, for a bottle. It was in the afternoon I took the first dose and then at night I took another. I slept soundly that night. The next morning when I awoke I had no pain. I took a few doses more, only using about two-thirds of a bottle altogether and my rheumatism was all gone. That is over a year ago and I have only felt a little twinge of the pain since, but nothing to speak of."

"Do you know of any others who have used Athlophores?"

"Yes, I have recommended it to many different persons. My confidence was so great in the medicine that in several instances I have bought bottles of it and given them to people, saying at the time that if it did not do its work they need not pay for it; but there is not a single case in which I did not have my money within a week. There is Mrs. Wright, an aged lady of seventy, living a few miles from here, who, after suffering from rheumatic pains for fifteen years, was entirely rid of all pain by three or four bottles of Athlophores. I recommended another lady, who was supposed to be suffering from dyspepsia, but who in reality had neuralgia of the stomach, to try Athlophores, and it soon cured her. My neighbor, who had a severe attack of neuralgia, his face being swollen out of all shape, was cured by a few doses. My confidence in Athlophores is very strong, and I believe that if any one suffering with rheumatism or neuralgia will take it right it will cure ninety-nine cases out of a hundred. It is worth $100 a bottle to every sufferer from rheumatism."

"If you cannot get Athlophores of your druggist, we will send it express paid, on receipt of regular price, one dollar per bottle. We prefer that you buy it from your druggist, but if he does not have it, we will send it by express, but order at once from us, as directed. Athlophores Co., 112 Wall Street, New York."

NATURAL GAS.

Companies Organized all About
Us to Bore for Vapor and Oil-The Money Invested by Fort Wayne
Men.

If the excitement about natural gas
continues, and new companies keep on forming and starting wells, the surface of the earth throughout this state will soon
look like a porous plaster. Fort Wayne capitalists are discussing the advisability
of organizing a company to bore for gas
at the Huntington stone quarries or near Huntersburg, in this county, where oil bubbled up some years ago. Yesterday
three companies filed articles of association with the secretary of state. They are the Bluffton Petroleum and Gas
Mining company of Portland, with a capital stock of $30,000 and L. A. Williams, A. J. Stewart, E. H. Montgomery,
W. S. Silver, N. T. Miller, Jacob North,
W. A. Gutaleus and G. W. Grimes as directors; the Portland (Jay county) Gas
and Oil Well company, with a capital stock of $2,500 and Henry W. Lewis, D.
E. Paul, Michael Lepahrt, Robert Stevenson and W. N. Current as directors; and the Baton (Delaware county) Mining and Gas company, with a capital stock of $100,000 and W. W. Worthington, B. C.
Bell, B. F. Smith, Jesse Nixon, A. M.
Forman, E. W. and G. W. Carter as directors. A gentleman who has recently come from Portland says that there is enough natural gas underlying that town
to supply the whole state and have plenty to spare, and that the citizens
there are in quandary what to do with
it. Gen. T. A. Morris says that for many years there has been a flow of natural gas in the town of Francesville,
Pulaski county, which has frequently lighted at night and blazed up to a height of many feet.
